

CHAPTER 13
IOWA STATE UNIVERSITY OF SCIENCE AND TECHNOLOGY
ORGANIZATION AND GENERAL RULES
[Prior to 4/20/88, Regents, Board of[720]]

681—13.1(262) Organization.

13.1(1) *Statement of university mission. Iowa State University of science and technology at Ames is recognized as a broad-based university with an orientation around science and technology which has sufficient scope and depth in its undergraduate and graduate instruction, its research, and its extension and public service functions to enable it to continue to be a distinguished land-grant university. In addition to its graduate and undergraduate work in the physical, biological, and social sciences, it will maintain strong undergraduate programs in the liberal arts, and will offer such master's and Ph.D. programs in this area as are justified to meet the needs of the state and to maintain the overall strength and desirable balance of the university as a whole. Although a majority of the degrees will continue to be bachelor of science and master of science degrees, the degrees offered in those major programs which are more closely related to the arts than to the sciences may be designated as bachelor of arts or master of arts degrees. In its professional programs, principal emphasis will be given to the maintenance of strong programs in the sciences, agriculture, engineering, veterinary medicine, environmental design, education, and home economics, with graduate instruction, research, extension and public service functions in these subject matter areas clearly recognized and generously supported. There will be no major programs in law, library science, human medicine, dentistry, pharmacy, nursing, social work, hospital administration, occupational therapy, physical therapy, speech pathology, or hydraulics engineering.

Future programs will be determined by the continuing study of existing programs and of developing needs. Programs will be curtailed or eliminated when the assessment of need and resources could best be spent on other programs. The university approaches the addition of new programs and courses with considerable caution. Generally, new programs are fashioned out of existing programs in response to developing needs. But if the university is to remain vital, it must consider at the appropriate time the development of some new programs that fall within its general mission and that meet the new needs of students and society.

This rule is intended to implement Iowa Code section 266.2.

13.1(2) *Officers. The university has three statutory officers: president, secretary, and treasurer. The president is the chief administrative officer of the university and has authority and duties as have been delegated by the board of regents.

The president has recommended, and the board of regents has appointed, five vice presidents who are directly responsible to the president. The vice president for academic affairs, through the deans and directors, coordinates and administers the academic program and the personnel policies of the university. The vice president for research coordinates the research program of the university and also administers the graduate college. The vice president for student affairs coordinates all nonacademic student services. The vice president for business and finance manages the fiscal operations and physical plant of the university. The vice president for information and development is responsible for the information services and developmental activities of the university. The vice president also serves as advisor on many other aspects of university relations, both internal and external.

A detailed listing of the university units is shown on the organizational chart contained in the university office procedure guide.

13.1(3) *Operations. The academic mission of the university is principally carried out through its six colleges: agriculture, education, engineering, family and consumer sciences, sciences and humanities, and veterinary medicine. The dean of each college is its chief administrative officer.

Research conducted by the experiment station varies from broad studies of statewide, regional and national impact, through studies to meet specific local needs, to fundamental work in the community, laboratory or greenhouse. This research gains information about people, animal life, plant growth and development, soils, climatology, ecology, water resources, and the relationships that exist among them. The chief administrative officer of the experiment station is the director.

The extension service is an integral part of the land-grant university system and provides the link whereby the findings of research are taken to Iowa people. The chief administrative officer of extension service is the director.

13.1(4) *Communications. Written and personal inquiry, submissions and requests should be addressed to the Information Service, 116 Morrill Hall, Iowa State University, Ames, Iowa 50011; or the office of the Board of Regents, Old Historical Building, Des Moines, Iowa 50319. Generally, inquiries, submissions, and requests by the public may be submitted by informal letter. However, application for some purposes is to be made on a specified form. A list of the forms, general description and the address where they may be obtained are found in rule 13.6(262).

13.1(5) *University office procedure guide. The university office procedure guide contains the policies governing the internal administrative operation of the university. It is available for public inspection at the reference desk in the university library and in the office of the state board of regents.

This rule is intended to implement Iowa Code section 266.2.
